Receive real-time news and updates from Pennsylvania American Water on Twitter. We are tapping the social networking site to deliver alerts on water emergencies, boil water advisories and water/wastewater construction projects, as well as information on customer programs, wise water usage, community events and environmental initiatives.

Twitter is a free online service that is used by millions of individuals and organizations around the world to send messages to others who subscribe to their updates. These messages are brief – up to only 140 characters in length. By following Pennsylvania American Water’s “tweets,” you will receive messages through your computer or mobile device. Because of Twitter’s space limitations, we will link to additional details on our Web site.

We are very excited about this powerful, real-time communications tool and hope you will follow us at Twitter.com/paamwater. It’s one more way that Pennsylvania American Water is working hard to deliver exceptional customer service!
